It provides a quick and easy way to search and browse the web. Web pages are displayed in a simple, intuitive, and search-friendly manner. Portable Fact200 uses a proprietary Parsing Engine that allows it to display web pages at the rate of up to 3 pages per second on a Pentium III or faster CPU. While other browsers are only limited by their CPU and are stuck with a low bandwidth when displaying web pages, Portable Fact200 adapts its efficiency to your CPU and bandwidth, ensuring fast and fluid browsing. Portable Fact200 uses a "find & go" approach to search. As you type into the search box, the results appear almost instantly. No matter how complex the search phrase you use, Portable Fact200 can quickly turn up a match. Portable Fact200 presents search results in a unique and intuitive way that is easy to understand and navigate. The result set is presented as a list of web pages sorted in order of last viewed date, content date, or score. You can click on a result to open the web page, or continue the search without reloading the page by selecting the preview tab and scrolling through the results. To browse the web more efficiently, you can save sets of results in order to preserve a specific list of web pages. Portable Fact200 places an emphasis on "Clicks over Bandwidth" so that you can browse the web without waiting for pages to load. Because Portable Fact200 pre-fetches data, it will load pages in parallel and show previews for them immediately. Pre-fetching data also feeds into the preview, index, and library mechanisms so that you can easily retrieve web pages. You can search, preview, and browse at the same time! Port
